As a result of strong, recent growth we are now seeking a Scientific Director (Team Lead) to join our dynamic team at emotive.

As an established and successful healthcare communications agency truly focused on scientific excellence, we offer a true blend of patient centric and strategically focused medical affairs work with a variety of clients including many biotechs and specialist life sciences. At emotive, we provide a wealth of interesting scientific writing and medical strategy opportunities, supporting our clients from pre- to post- launch.

Working alongside one of our Senior Account Directors, this is a co-leadership position role in one of our dedicated 'pod' teams, made up of expert client services and medical writers who together work with a defined cluster of our Global, Regional and UK clients across therapy areas such rare diseases, oncology, anti-inflammatory and neurology.

We'd love to hear from you if you are a seasoned medical communications professional with a passion for writing, mentoring team members and leading a team. You must have an MSc or PhD in life sciences or related subject, with significant experience in an agency environment. You'll also be a creative thinker, with the ability to provide input into scientific communication concepts for projects that meet client's strategic objectives. You'll be a great team leader and role model providing leadership, coaching and mentoring support to medical writing members of the team.

In return, we promise to be informal, fluid and flexible. Having use of the company's newly refurbished offices in London or Sussex, with the option to perform the role through a blend of office and/or remote working, we also provide great career development opportunities, a friendly and collaborative culture and a wide range of benefits and rewards:

- 33 days including bank holidays + the ability to buy more holiday if wanted
- Birthday day off
- Individual learning budget
- Flexible working policy
- Discounts through Perkbox including retail
- Discounted gym membership and a variety of health and well-being support
- Assistance for travelling to work through Bike2work or a rail card scheme
- 6 weeks paid sabbatical after 5 years' service

If you want to join us at this exciting time, please contact us using the link below.
